This autumn, the stone placed at initiative of local Burashevo authorities will solemnly be decorated with a memorial tablet for Estonia's first President.

At the end of June, Burashevo village council in Tver Oblast, Russia had a large four tonne memorial stone placed at the village cemetery on the one-time burial place of Estonia's first President Konstantin Päts. Soon, a tablet will be attached by Estonian activists.

Henn Latt, a man deeply involved in the discovery of Konstantin Päts' burial place and reburial of the President said the local Burashevo powers and inhabitants of the region highly respect the link of the past.
